GLADIOLUS

GLADS BLOOM FROM 70 TO 90 DAYS AFTER PLANTING DEPENDING UPON VARIETY.

PLANT SOME EVERY WEEK OR SO, AND YOU CAN HAVE BLOOMS UNTIL FROST.

NOTE: Some of the varieties listed are new and are offered by us for the first time. Since you will surely want Gladiolus in your garden the question arises as to what size bulbs you should buy and where you should buy them. These questions are answered below.

This is a Gladiolus bulblet. These are sometimes sold as blooming varieties of bulbs 1" to 2" in circumference. Note: They are blooming varieties, not blooming size—1" in circumference is less than 1/3" in diameter. Bulblets take 2 years to bloom.

Our Largest Bulbs

Our Smallest Bulbs

Our Glads are large enough to give a bloom of excellent quality the first year. They have never bloomed before so you get all the bloom the bulb is capable of producing. This is the size bulb bought in huge quantities by the commercial growers who raise gladiolus for the cut flower market. This size is your best buy. You can pay less and get bulblets, or pay more and get older bulbs with less life remaining.

OUR PRICE IS ONLY 2c each (for 200)

FOR GLADIOLUS BULBS WHICH ARE UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEED TO GIVE YOU TOP QUALITY BLOOMS THIS YEAR.

YOU CANNOT BUY A BETTER BULB AT ANY PRICE

RANUNCULUS

A well-bred relative of the common Buttercup. Our Ranunculus will produce a number of large, full, double blooms of brilliant colors and delicate texture. Ranunculus requires more care and cultivation than Dutch Iris, but they have the great virtue of producing a comparatively large plant from a very small bulb and of producing a profusion of lovely blooms over a long period of time.

ANEMONES

A bloom similar in size and texture to Ranunculus, and care is also similar. The colors are slightly different from Ranunculus but blend well with them and for that reason the two are frequently planted together. We have both the double (St. Brigid) and the single (De Caen) Anemones, but it should be remembered that even the double Anemones will actually produce double flowers only if given proper care.

CALADIUM BULBS

Caladiums are the most colorful plant that we know. They are very fast growing and produce a big "show". During June, July, and August, when it is too hot for most other plants, their brilliant foliage will brighten any drab spot in your garden.

To do their best Caladiums should be planted in very rich, loose soil containing a good deal of humus. They require good drainage but like to be watered frequently and liberally. They may be planted in sun or shade but the foliage will be larger and brighter colored if they are planted in the shade.

It is our opinion that Caladiums are most effective if used in mass and if the number of varieties used is kept small. We think that the most attractive plantings consist of not more than three different varieties. However, we have found from experience that most of our customers prefer a wider assortment.

Caladiums are most effective if planted in mass and our quantity price of 40 for $5.00 makes mass planting practical.

Please indicate number of "bags of 5" wanted, NOT NUMBER OF BULBS.
